F. L. Santon in At any Constitution Spring fever-ain't no cure for it; I have it once a year; It takes me in the city, And makes me drowsy here.

And I nod, And I nod, Like a feorgia fishin' rod, When it feels the troot a pullin' 'Fore you land him on the sod!

Spring fever-don't know how it comes, And no one ever know; And all I know is when it's here, It erceps all over you!

And you dream, And you dream. That you're floating down's stream; Floatin', floatin' like a feather Where the water illies gleam?

A WEST VIRGINIA WOMAN

Who Does a Shrewd Swindling Business in New York City.

From an article by Nelly Bly, in the New York World, in which she exposes certain swindling operations by persons advertising bargains in pianos and household goods, the following interest-household goods, the following interesting extract is taken:

Between thirty-six and forty years ago Fanny Ford was born somewhere in West Virginia. Her parents were poor people. Her father, now of perhaps seventy years, was for forty years a pilot on the Onio river.

The family moved to Gallipolis, O., and something like ten years ago Fanny Ford married a man named Walsh, who tried to practise medicine in Cincinnati.

tried to practise medicine in Cincinnati. It is said that Walsh made a failure of medicine, and that then Fanny went of medicine, and that then Fanny went into the furniture business, just as she is in it to-day, buying cheap furniture at wholesale prices, and selling it by alluring misrepresentations to would-be bargain-finders.

Less than three years ago Walsh died and left his wife with three children whom she idolizes. There is Lucy, nine years old, who has a governess, for her fond mother will not permit her to attend public school. Next comes Tiny, a little five-year-old girl, and last is Elmer, three years old, the baby and only boy.

After Walsh died Mrs. Walsh had about $10,000 that she had scraped to-gether, and with that amount and her three children she removed from Cincinnai to broader fields.

In other words, she came to Now Verk and parted Vals 17 West Tearner.

In other words, she came to New York and rented No. 17 West Twentyourth street, where she opened a board-Her first boarder was Victor Cadieux.

Her first boarder was Victor Cadieux, a Canadian youth, less than twentyone years old, who attended to the stereoscopes in the Eden Musee.

No one knows whether it was the widow Walsh who made the first advances, or the boy Cadieux, but be that as it may, they say that in less than eight months after her husband's death, and with coursement if nor almostable. and with courageous, if not admirable disregard of the almost double differdisregard of the almost double difference in age, the two were wed, and Victor gave up the Eden Musee, with its motionless inmates, for the boarding-house and its spry mistress.

The boarding-house proved a failure, I don't know why, for though Fanny didn't sell furniture during that time she sold carnets.

Having lost considerable on the boarders, the removed to No. 137 West Forty-sixth street, where she went into the business in which she is at present the business in which she is at present engaged.

But trouble will come to those who deal unfairly, and at last too many had lost money through her to make home very comfortable, so she gave it up and went to No. 48 West Twenty-seventh street. street. She only remained there about six

She only remained there about six months when she sold her lease at $100 increase to a Mrs. Gibbs, together with $800 worth of furniture.

It was only six months from the time she lived in West Twenty-seventh street until she sold and moved to No. 127 West Forty-seventh street February I. She buys her furniture at wholesale prices from Pierce & Co., West Nineteenth street, near Sixth avenue, and this furniture sie represents as having cost enormous amounts, and succeeds cost enormous amounts, and succeed in swindling her customers into buying at prices that exceed the real value giving Mrs. Cadieux a most handsome profit.

Her pianos are bought from Sears R.
Kelso, One Hundred and Thirty-third street and Lincoln avenue, and by examining the following receipts, it will be seen how buyers are easily misled
and swindled:

The first receipt dated Moreh 5

and swindled:

The first receipt, dated March 5, 1894, giving the number of the pinno and price, $100, is the real receipt. That was meant only for the Cadieux family. The second receipt, dated August 26, 1893, and giving the number of the piano and the price as $600, is the fake receipt, given by the firm of the Cadieuxes to help them swindle the public into believing the piano cost a great deal and that $140 ($40 increase on the real price) they would be getting on the real price) they would be getting it at a great bargain.

The carpets are furnished by Dobson & Co. Most of them are made in the house, and when they are shown it is always done in the hall, so that a buyer cannot judge how small the carpet is.

I was shown one that was actually not more than ten teet long and four breadths wide, and was earnestly assured that it covered the floor of a very large room. it at a great bargain.

Royal Palaces to be Sold.

London, March 20 .- A special dispatch to the Standard from Vienna says that all the royal Italian palaces and domains outside of Rome, with the ex-ception of the palaces at Turin, Venice, Florence, Naples and Palermo, and a few hunting grounds, will be sold. The expense of maintaining the royal prop-erties is very great, and the determination to dispose of many of these proper-ties is due to the desire of King Hum bert to reduce his civil list,

Two Hundred Mohammedans Killed. MADRID, March 20.-Advices received here from Mandanao, capital of the island of that name, in the Malay archisiand of that name, in the Malay archipelago, show that a large body of Mohammedan natives made an attack upon the Spaniards on the island of Pantar. In thefighting that ensued one Spaniard was killed and many were wounded. The Spaniards inflicted severe losses upon the natives, 200 of them being killed.

Gen. Neal Dow's Birthday in England. London, March 20.-England, in common with all civilized world, is celebrating to-day the 90th birthday of General Neal Dow, the great American temperance advocate. At Exerter hall, this city, there was an immense meeting to-night in honor of the veteran temperance agitator.
